

With respect to the issue of personal information, I think that it is an absolute violation of personal privacy to publish the names and salaries of civil servants and I cannot believe that the practice has gone unchallenged for so many years. All that is necessary to accomplish the objectives of accountability and transparency is to publish positions, paybands and number of individuals in that payband. I can see absolutely no purpose in publishing names.