

Highest Education Level by Age Group

The number of college graduates is consistently higher than the number of university graduates even though university participation rates among young people are much higher than college participation rates. The same is generally true for trade qualifications, except among the younger age group. Source: Statistics Canada, 2001 Census