

I don't think that safety personnel should be directly hired by a company, I believe that they should be sub-contracted. As a "company" safety person sometimes it is hard to push issues without "hanging" yourself or putting your job in jeopardy. Although I firmly believe in safety in the workplace, if safety people were sent through a union, sub-contractor, or provided through the WHSCC etc. it would be so much easier to perform to the utmost of your abilities without feeling stifled or as if you are betraying your employer. hey, safety people have bills to pay too!!
